This Contemporary Reform Black and Gold Chest of Drawers by Jonathan Adler pictorializes the designer's commitment to creating distinctive pieces that transcend the ordinary.

It retains its original signature brass plate

This chest of drawers boasts a unique facade featuring the signature Reform design—a relief texture originally sculpted in the Soho pottery studio. The drawer faces are clad in a sheet of brass, hand-hammered and polished to perfection, creating an interplay of texture and sheen. This meticulous process pays homage to the Brutalist architecture of modernist temples and churches, drawing inspiration from iconic structures such as Le Corbusier's Ronchamp, Miami's Temple Israel, and the Cathedral of Brasilia.

The ebonized and limed oak veneer adds depth to the piece, while solid brass sheet panels and solid brass legs contribute to its contemporary aesthetic. Equipped with three drawers featuring soft-close slides, the functionality of this piece matches its visual appeal.

The Reform Black and Gold Chest of Drawers by Jonathan Adler is not merely furniture; it's a statement piece that transforms your living space into a gallery of contemporary artistry and functional elegance.
