Oil Painting on canvas proudly signed C. G. Moody untraceable painter! It sits in a very nice and matching frame chosen by the artist. In this impressionist painting from the 1960s, depicting a farm with a silo in New England. Moody enhances the visual appeal by choosing colour combinations that highlight and complement each other, bringing poetry and harmony to the overall composition of the countryside scene. Red, green, orange, and grey are excellent choices for fall themes as they evoke the image of the season's crisp leaves and the textural warmth of natural materials. The use of red makes the barn perfect for emphasising the structure's focal point, while green and orange enhance the natural setting.
