

1950's Studio Craft Magazine Tree in the Style of Edward Wormley for Dunbar

As low as $2,200

In stock

SKU

LU825837575092

Details

The 1950s Studio Craft Magazine Tree embodies the DIY Dunbar style, reminiscent of the iconic designs by Edward Wormley. This rustic piece stands proud in its original dark walnut stained wax finish, capturing the essence of the era. This five-tier magazine tree boasts cantilevered shelves with meticulous details—a wide raised border on each tier adds depth and character while a higher arch to the footing lends a sense of elegance. A distinctive feature of this piece is the inclusion of a three-hole grab handle built into the rack spine, blending utility with style.

Whether as a stand-alone piece or placed strategically beside a chair or sofa, it serves as a haven for book and magazine lovers alike. Its design not only offers practical storage but also adds a touch of timeless charm to the space.

REFERENCE NUMBER: LU825837575092

PERIOD: Mid-20th Century

CONDITION: Good

MEASUREMENTS: Height: 27.5" Width: 16.75" Depth: 24"

COUNT: 1

MATERIAL: Wood

CREATOR: Edward Wormley (Designer)

COUNTRY OF ORIGIN: United States