Hand-carved and painted in matte white, this abstract wooden sculpture by Los Angeles artist Charles Fultz captures the essence of mid-century modern organic form. The piece features a hollowed central opening and fluid contours, balanced atop a contrasting black base. Its minimalist yet expressive shape evokes both natural and architectural inspiration — a refined study in texture, void, and movement.

A standalone art object, this work exemplifies Fultz's sculptural exploration of balance and abstraction, making it ideal for modern and contemporary interiors.
