Details

This mixed-media modern abstract collage draws us into a world where each cut newspaper is meticulously hemmed in black, like a frame accentuating its shape and significance. The artist presents us with fragments of thought, encapsulating snippets of a fast-paced, fractured reality. French Words like "Jazz festival," "Débloquer l'énergie," "Méridiens" emerge, inviting us to ponder their interconnectedness and the artist's personality.

On the vibrant backdrop of cut pieces, rectilinear shapes resembling the sticks from the MIKADO game emerge, adding a playful and profound dimension to the composition. These lines evoke the dichotomy between structure and spontaneity and the balance of power and consequence, order and chaos, echoing the game's unpredictability.

The bursting of the pieces like a disassembled puzzle could also symbolize the fragmentation of our collective consciousness, reflecting the turmoil and disarray within our minds.

Amidst this chaos, there is a sense of cohesion—a subtle stitching together of disparate elements, like a hem bordering each fragment. The bold and vibrant colors pulse with life, demanding our attention and igniting our imagination.

In this modern abstract collage, we are invited to contemplate the intricate dialogue of form, color, and meaning—an invitation to discover the hidden truths beneath the surface.

In the back of the piece, there is a tag reading "Atelier Carette".
