Details

Beautiful composition in this piece. The symmetry and colors create a fluid guide down the page.

Posillico uses the figure as a signature character and is found in nearly all of his paintings and 3-dimensional mixed media pieces. The figures are elongated, race-less, gender-less, and composed of a single color each.

With the title of this serigraph being "Creating a Brighter Life," and looking at these figures I interpret this piece to figure out if all the people gliding down from the deep blue sky and landing on land are happy to reach a more positive and brighter world or if they are trying to go back to the sky!.

Serigraph print # 28/75, marked, signed, and dated on the front and back.

A native of Long Island, New York, Leo, has been a successful, award-winning artist for over 45 years. His work is known and praised nationally and internationally and is widely recognizable through his signature brushstroke characters.

Trained at New York City's School of Visual Arts, Posillico, has been a photographer in Vietnam and pursued a multi-faceted art career as an art director, illustrator, board game designer, album, book cover artist, and author. He has been represented by Martin Lawrence Galleries in the United States and shown in various galleries in Japan.
