Details

This exquisite print is from L'illustration Horticole, one of the great Belgian horticultural periodicals of the 1800s. Published from 1854 to 1896, L'illustration Horticole featured a monthly review of noteworthy plants for the greenhouse and garden. Included were descriptions, illustrations, history, and advice on cultivating the plants. In 1869, Jean Linden took over the publication of the review (Linden is best known for his Iconography of Orchids).

These prints are particularly noteworthy for the richness of the coloring resulting from the chromolithographic process used to produce them.

The chromolithographs were prepared by Pieter de Pannemaeker, a noted 19th-century Belgium artist and lithographer.
