Details

This white lacquered dresser from the 1980s, reminiscent of the Roger Rougier style, boasts a unique feature: contrasting black handle accents adorning six stairs-stepped drawers .

With its refined high-gloss finish, the dresser's appeal lies in its minimalist design characterized by clean lines and a timeless allure. While lacking a maker's mark, its craftsmanship reflects the distinctive design ethos of its era.

Featuring six generously-sized drawers, this piece offers practical storage, and combines both utility and enduring sophistication.

For those seeking a more compact option, a smaller version with three drawers is available.
