"Astral Temptation" is a rusted metal sculpture of an alien woman. The sculpture is a great pretender, a fabrication that reveals our need for storytelling and artifice. By knitting networks of ideas, articulating subjectivities, and creating communities, the sculpture reflects our society and the times we live in. It challenges us with competing interwoven fictions, discomfort, and the unexpected. This Metallic Alien does not need to be validated by markers of excellence, nor should it be used for market rationales. Instead, we should celebrate the joy of receiving without a predetermined destination this outstanding vision taking the form of this Woman from another World. Of the female body remains the breast, the arch of the loins, the curvy shape of the buttocks, and this waist chain underlining the female delicacy. The Alien Goddess stands on infinite legs and boasts astonishing feet, with her toes spread wide as if expressing the wonder of her extraterrestrial observations. Each toe punctuates her overall shape with an exclamation mark-like effect. Perhaps the alien is trying to put down roots in this world, extending the length of her toes to ensure she is not moved by a gust of wind while she discovers our Earth.

It is a playful and joyful sculpture that will undoubtedly make a unique and eye-catching statement piece.
