Details

This mid-century modern plaster sculpture, finished in silver, depicts two abstracted figures in an intimate embrace. The smooth, faceless forms and flowing lines capture both tenderness and strength, emphasizing movement and emotional unity over literal realism. The figures' interlocking shapes and draped geometry evoke a timeless sense of connection — a poetic representation of love distilled to its purest form.

Resting on a sculpted black base, this piece combines sensual curvature with a futuristic metallic sheen, reminiscent of the stylized minimalism seen in 1970s Italian and American modernist sculpture.

Condition

Excellent vintage condition with minor wear consistent with age and material. The metallic silver finish retains its luster and depth, highlighting the sculptural contours beautifully.

Collector's Note

This work stands as both a decorative statement and an evocative piece of emotional modernism. Its universal subject and harmonious form make it ideal for both contemporary and mid-century interiors.
